

C.M. Steve Aron

Practice Areas:

- Civil Litigation
- Administrative Law in State Agencies
- Oil & Gas
- Appeals

Steve Aron is a founder of the law firm. His experience includes four decades of civil litigation in the Wyoming district courts of twenty-one different counties, and the federal courts of four states. The subjects of litigation have included civil rights, personal injury and wrongful death, business matters, professional malpractice, trust and estate disputes, and wrongful termination of employment. He has been involved in more than fifty appeals in the Wyoming Supreme Court and the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, and petitions to the United States Supreme Court.

In the past, Steve handled extensive corporate and business legal matters in five states and Canada, as well as civil litigation and criminal defense. In recent years his practice focused on civil litigation and legal aspects of ranch management, including oil and gas issues.

Steve has received several writing awards and is the author of a book "A Thread in the Labyrinth" and an essay, "The Fault of us All," available on Amazon, as well as diverse magazine articles and op-ed pieces, and is the founder of Mountain Sparrow Press.